Lots of fun, inexpensive projects to do with kids. My 6yr old son was thrilled with the pictures and quickly selected several projects. They are all very inexpensive; several are almost free if you already have the tools, such as hand clippers, scissors, milk jugs, pretty pebbles you can find loose on the ground at Wal-Mart or Home Depot, by the displays of landscaping rocks, etc. They are easy to do on a rainy day or a day it's too cold/hot to be outside playing. The book is divided into sections based on seasons. Autumn will tell you how to make a sanctuary for bees to winter over. Spring tells how to assist birds line their nests. Highly recommended if you love nature. The instructions are easy to understand, based on materials easily obtained (like plaster of Paris) and are projects a regular person would WANT to build. No instructions for mostly useless projects (like how to help a koala bear build a nest.) We love it.

FANTASTIC book for junior gardeners! My granddaughter and I are both excited about starting on some of the projects in this book. Good quality binding and paper, lots of photos and pictures, easy to read instructions.

Gardening Projects For Kids This book has all of the fun ideas that I was looking for in planning my projects for my lesson plans. Am also using them with my senior citizens.

My nieces both are learning from their parents, the importance of self sustainability. Growing some of their own foods, as well as raising chickens and rabbits for food, keeping bees for honey, forging edible wild plants and berries, etc. They love the book I got them. Both have a little garden they started. My nieces are 8 and 10 years old, and this book is easy for them to follow.

My 7 yr old son and I are looking forward to doing some of the projects this spring. The book is gorgeous and filled with cool ideas!

This book has 101 ways to involve children in gardens. They plant sunflower seeds and make a sunflower house. They can make gourd moroccas or birdhouses. How about a scarecrow or corn husk dolls? Or bug races? Or making lavender-scented bath salts or mixing their own tea bags? Then there's making a bird bath. All of these original ideas are included making being outdoors a joy. This book will teach appreciation and care of the environment.

Great book. I purchased this for my nieces. The projects in the book are things that would interest kids and adults alike. Not too difficult.
